

Christine Lim – English Lecturer

Christine Lim graduated from the National University of Singapore (NUS) with a Bachelor of Arts degree, majoring in English Literature and English Language. She then attained a Post-graduated Diploma in Education from the National Institute of Education (NIE) and embarked on her 16-year long education career with the Singapore Ministry of Education (MOE). For her commitment to the teaching profession, she has been awarded the Long Service Award by MOE.

A veteran teacher, she specialized in the teaching of General Paper (AO Level) in a Junior College in Singapore. She was also an experienced moderator and facilitator of the 'A' Level Project Work, a senior member of the college's National Education Committee and Library Service for many years.

In 2004, she went on sabbatical leave to pursue her academic interest in South-East Asian History and Politics. In 2005, she attained the Masters of Arts with distinction from NUS, and was conferred the Benjamin Bateson Gold medal by NUS.

Since leaving the Singapore Civil Service, she has specialized in the teaching of 'O' Level English and Academic English to foreign students in private educational institutes. She has also taught foreign students from the Primary and Secondary Government Preparatory classes, preparing them for entrance to government schools all over Singapore.

A lively and engaging teacher, she enjoys interacting with students from many diverse cultures, learning about their customs and picking up a smattering of different languages. She has built up very strong rapport with her students through class outings and barbecues and still maintains contact with many of her past students via sms, msn, emails and Facebook.
